This isn't the first time a UFO sighting has captured public attention in the UK. Notable incidents include:

- 1. The Rendlesham Forest Incident (1980): Known as "Britain's Roswell."
- 2. The Bonnybridge Sightings (1990s): A hotspot for UFO reports in Scotland.
- 3. Multiple London Sightings: Frequently debated in urban areas.

These cases show how UFO claims continue to intrigue and divide public opinion.

Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAPs) are objects or events in the sky that defy immediate explanation. While many are later identified as weather phenomena, drones, or camera artifacts, the mystery surrounding some sightings fuels our fascination with the unknown. They often prompt questions about:

- Extraterrestrial life.
- Advanced human-made technologies.
- Natural phenomena beyond current scientific understanding.

Experts investigating UFO claims suggest several possibilities for sightings like the Manchester orb:

1. Camera Artifacts: Digital distortions or lens flares.

2. Man-Made Objects: Drones, weather balloons, or aircraft lights.

3. Astronomical Phenomena: Bright planets, stars, or atmospheric events.

In many cases, a lack of tangible evidence makes definitive conclusions difficult.
